Don't slip up. Make sure you identify, and take steps to manage Health and Safety risks

Unsafe working conditions can arise in any business, causing injury, illness and even death. So it pays to put effective health & safety management in place to protect yourself, your employees and the public.

Hazards exist in every workplace to varying degrees, so careful assessment and management is needed.

Identifying and preventing workplace hazards

Handling heavy loads manually, for instance, or working at height, proximity to toxic substances, dust, fumes, noise, vibrations, biohazardous materials, dangerous machinery, even stress can pose a significant risk to the safety and wellbeing of your business and employees.

Given the sheer range of potential workplace hazards, the best way to protect your business is to identify the risks and take practical steps to reduce or eliminate them.
